

October 31, 2014

“It is rare for a single project to have a nation-building dimension to it, but the Energy East Pipeline project has exactly that, by stimulating substantial economic activity across 6 provinces. This initiative will not only open up employment opportunities for Building Trades workers, but will also have a multiplier effect on local maintenance and service jobs in communities across Canada. We are hopeful that many of those employment opportunities will come to younger workers, women, Aboriginals, and returning veterans as we build Ontario’s and Canada’s future workforce.”

Patrick Dillon, Business Manager,
Building and Construction Trades Council of Ontario